Social order is based on justice

TEHRAN - "The judiciary is one of the efficient organs of the government, the basis of national order and discipline, guarantor of security and justice and the enforcer of law," the Leader of the Islamic Revolution Ayatollah Ali Khamenei said here Sunday.

The Leader further stressed, "consequently, it is not permitted to weaken the Judiciary as the responsibility assigned to that power is vital and sensitive in nature," IRNA reported.

"As decisions made by the judicial power leave subsequent effects on the rest of the government institutions, it is necessary that those who have responsibilities in the judicial system, act in accordance to the norms of sincerity, trustworthiness, chasteness, precisionness, judiciousness and dispense their judgement in firmness," Ayatollah Khamenei stated.

Warning the political factions and the press, the Leader said, "one of the ways to create mistrust and suspicion in the hearts of people against the Judiciary is to spread rumours and to issue baseless irresponsible statements against that sovereign legal institution."

"Justice and fair handedness are the two most important criteria in the Islamic community and that the social order is based on justice," the Leader of the Islamic Revolution elucidated.

The Ayatollah further pointed out, "injustice breeds swindlers, embezzlers and profiteers."

"Consequently, the judiciary with the help of the executive branch are instructed to look for those who have accumulated wealth illegitimately," the Leader said.

Ayatollah Khamenei then advised the Judiciary to stand firm against the criminals as the honor, dignity and respect of the that system is based on dispensation of precise justice in the community."

The Leader of the Islamic Revolution was speaking to the top judicial officials and the families of the martyrs of the seventh of Tir when seventy two of the best and the brightest Iranian officials attained martyrdom in an explosion at the Islamic Republic Party headquarters on June 28, 1981.

Kharrazi:
Iran ready to assist establishment of tranquility in Tajikistan

TEHRAN - Foreign Minister Kamal Kharrazi here Saturday night in a message to Tajik President Imomali Rakhmanov, congratulated him on the first anniversary of signing of the comprehensive peace treaty on Tajikistan, June 27.

In his message, Kharrazi said that despite problems facing the Tajik government in the past year, the country successfully managed to move towards achievement of a lasting peace, IRNA reported.

"I am sure that the new Tajik generation will have the opportunity to participate in their country's political, economic and cultural affairs under the guidance of Tajik leaders and through the implementation of all agreements inked during the peace talks," he stated.

He further stressed that the Iranian government and nation are ready to offer any assistance towards materialization of objectives of peace and establishment of tranquility and security in that country.

The Iranian foreign minister also sent congratulatory messages to Tajik leaders, government and the nation on the same occasion.

The comprehensive peace accord on Tajikistan was signed by President Rakhmanov and the leader of the allied Tajik opposition Abdullah Nouri on June 27, 1997.

Iran seeks peace, tranquility for all human beings

TEHRAN - President Mohammad Khatami here on Sunday told the visiting Colombian Parliament Speaker, Carlos Arida Ballesteros, that the Islamic Republic seeks peace and tranquility for all human beings.

"Real peace would prevail only upon recognition of all nations rights to dignity as well as equality in accessing all facilities existing in the world," the president added, quoted by IRNA.

Touching on the grounds for cooperation between Iran and Colombia, Khatami said "combating narcotics is one of the areas which the two countries can expand their cooperation."

Stressing the importance of exchanging experiences in the fight against drugs, the chief executive said "considering it as a human and Islamic duty, Iran spends significant amount of energy and resources to prevent trafficking of drugs to European countries."

Khatami further referred to narcotics as a major extraterritorial threat against the Islamic Republic, adding "we intensely combat this menace and have sacrificed many lives for this purpose, and this is something that the West should highly appreciate about the Islamic Republic of Iran."

Another forum for Tehran-Bogota cooperation, Khatami added, is the Non-Aligned Movement.

"While we are naturally moving towards a multipolar world, efforts are still needed for this cause. At the end of the 20th century and beginning of the 21st, we should prove that the future world is one with no masters and one which heralds equal rights for all nations," the president said.

The Colombian official stressed the importance of expanding Tehran-Bogota ties, adding "all developing countries should come together to prevent formation of a uni-polar world."

Expressing dismay at what he called the distorted image depicted of Colombia in the world, Ballesteros said that some media affiliated to the big powers try to depict Colombia as a country in control of drug traffickers.

"Drugs have a small part in the Colombian society and even that is brought about by the consumers in the United States of America," the Colombian Parliament speaker concluded.

Meanwhile, the visiting speaker of Colombian Parliament later on Sunday met with the Parliament Vice-Speaker, Hassan Rowhani.

Ballesteros told Rowhani that producing a working plan for Iran-Colombia inter-parliamentary cooperation tops the agenda of his Iran visit, adding that such plan would enable the two countries to benefit from each other's potentials.

Noting Iran's chairmanship of the Organization of the Islamic Conference (OIC) and its active role in the Non-Aligned Movement (NAM), the Colombian official called on Tehran to try to bring about a closer cooperation between the two organizations.

Ballesteros praised the prevalence of moral values and spirituality in the Islamic Republic, adding that many governments which departed from such values experienced major moral crises. They thus arrived at the conclusion that salvation is possible only through returning moral values and spirituality to politics, he added.

The Iranian official expressed delight over the existing amicable relations between Iran and Colombia, and called for further expansion of the two countries' ties.

Noting Iran's chairmanship of OIC and the Colombian presidency of NAM, Rowhani said "any kind of cooperation between the two countries can be considered a step to restore the rights of the Third World countries."

He further referred to cooperation amongst Third World countries as the key to foil the conspiracies of big powers.

Amongst potential areas of Iran-Colombia cooperation, Rowhani enumerated economy, tourism and culture.

At the conclusion of the meeting, the Colombian official extended an official invitation to Rowhani to visit Bogota. Rowhani expressed hope to be able to accept the invitation in an opportune time.
