

Volume 42

Number 2

Winter 2015

Race Matters: The Presence and Representation of Authors and Characters of Color in YA Literature

Wendy Glenn Ricki Ginsberg Danielle King	From the Editors Call for Manuscripts	4
Coe Booth, Matt de la Peña, Walter Dean Myers, Cynthia Leitich Smith, Gene Luen Yang	Race Matters: A Collaborative Conversation	8
Wanda M. Brooks Jonda C. McNair	Expanding the Canon: Classic African American Young Adult Literature	15
Kristine Gritter, Xu Bian, Kristi Kanehen	Contextualizing Metaphors of Literacy in Young Adult Literature (2000–2013)	24
Antero Garcia Marcelle Haddix	Reading YA with “Dark Brown Skin”: Race, Community, and Rue’s Uprising	37
Emily Wender	Felt Tensions: Preservice Teachers Read Sherman Alexie’s An Absolutely True Diary of a Part-Time Indian	45
Chonika Coleman-King Susan L. Groenke	Enhancing Antiracist Teacher Education: Critical Witnessing through Pairing YA Literature and Adult Nonfiction	57
Brandon Sams Kate R. Allman	Complicating Race: Representation and Resistance Using Arab and Asian American Immigrant Fictions	68
E. Sybil Durand	Understanding Diversity in a Global Context: Preservice Teachers’ Encounters with Postcolonial Young Adult Literature	80
Patricia Hauschildt	“I loved this book, even though . . .”: Reading International Young Adult Literature	91
Rénard B. Harris S.d. Collins	BOOK IN REVIEW: A TEACHING GUIDE Seriously, Can We Talk Laugh about Race? Voices from Open Mic	103