SUMMARY

Renee is an unusually competent, responsible, and resourceful staff member that the Department of Biological Sciences relies on heavily for the successful execution of the laboratory sections for multiple upper-level microbiology courses. Her organizational skills and work ethic make it possible for us to provide hundreds of students with a very positive hands-on learning experience. She consistently performs above and beyond the call of duty and exceeds the expectations of her coworkers and supervisors in preparing materials for labs, advising graduate student teaching assistants, and anticipating the needs of the students and instructors with who she works.
